Linda: What's the best concert you've ever been to?

John: Maksim's concert a year ago. He's been my idol for years. Maksim's the absolute king of the piano. Actually, I haven't been to a concert since then.

Linda: A boring piano concert? And you call that music? It's just old-fashioned 'plink-plonk' on the keyboard! No electric guitars, no drum section, no hands in the air. You are so not IN.

John: I don't care about being IN. What's in today is out tomorrow. I don't care about trendy stuff, I care about top quality music. I've built this world of my own.

Linda: What world?

John: My own music world — no INS and no OUTS, just the best stuff from the past and the best from the present. My piano teacher gave me a few hints.

Linda: Come on. How can you be so snobbish? I bet you didn't go to the U2 concert.

John: No, I didn't. I hate all this artificial hysteria the media created about it.
