Household chores? No big deal! In my family we have no problems with household chores. Every Sunday evening we have a little meeting in our kitchen. We discuss all the things that we have to do, and then we make a weekly plan.

Everybody gets some tasks to do. Nobody stays out. Mum puts the list on the fridge door. We check it every night before going to bed. And that's it. The plan works well.

I have to make my bed every day but I tidy up my room once a week. I usually do it on Saturday morning. I also have to lay the table but I don't have to clear it. My sister Vicky does it. We all look after our dog. His name is Rex. My sister and I feed the dog but mum and dad have to take it for a walk, twice a day. Mum does the cooking and ironing and dad does the hoovering* and takes the garbage out on Tuesdays and Fridays. You know what I really hate? Washing up. Luckily, everybody has to do it. We take turns.
